

BY 2027

Employers will need 87.7 million people working in project management- oriented roles.

Is your organization ready? Are you?

There are numerous benefits to implementing project management practices at your organization. MBI Consulting, LLC can help you with the process to select a project management training solution that will align with your organizational framework. You can start by answering the following questions so that we can provide the appropriate guidance. Let's get going!

What type of project management training do you provide at your organization?

- Whatever is available from the on-demand service
- Whatever our existing vendors tell us about
- Whatever we currently have on hand
- None of the above. We don't offer any project management training.

How is this current approach working for you? Your colleagues? The organization?

If you're looking for a better, more meaningful, training solution, we can help. Let's get started with some questions and considerations:

- Are the projects in your organization managed in the same way, with similar process steps?
- What are some of the pain points with the projects? Lack of planning? Stalled projects? Frequently missed deliverables?
- Are there any formally trained Project Managers, in-house, who can help with the research and identification of training resources?
- Based on some of the information from the above questions, start researching training solutions that will align with the organization's project processes. Focus on features that can address the identified pain points.
- Identify several individuals who, based on their role, could contribute to a project team assigned to assess and pilot some training solutions and provide feedback.

The overall goal is consistency in process and engagement from the teams. This will lead to an increased level of commitment which will elevate the level of success for projects, goals, strategies, and initiatives throughout the organization.

Contact Mary Beth for a free consultation on the power of project management.

Mary Beth Imbarrato PMP, CSM, SPP, CMS

518-339-9487

MB@mbiconsults.com

www.mbiconsults.com